Presentation: Intel in the Lehigh Valley

The Lehigh Valley is home to the Xeon and Networking Engineering organization (XNE) and brings a legacy of wireline and wireless networking expertise to creating amazing products for today's mobile networks. This presentation will give you a view of the history of that legacy: from AT&T Bell Labs through a rich family of spin-offs and finally to Intel today. The promise and application that fills our cellular-enabled lives will be reviewed – from 3G to 5G and beyond. Along the way we will discuss the backdrop of the incredible progression of silicon technologies and their challenges that make this journey possible.
